Men and Issues

There is no lack of men who are candidates for office, but what of the issues, and how do the candidates stand on the issues.

The Lynchburg News in discussing this important matter says:

There is but one thing for those who are interested in public questions to do, and that is to demand some statement now. How do the candidates stand on the fee system? Do they favor the present Virginia system of bribing magistrates to find Virginians guilty, regardless of law and of evidence? Do they favor the short ballot or do they oppose it? Do they favor taking out of the constitution the safeguard against confiscation of property without due process of law, in the guise of payment for public improvements? Do they favor or oppose reducing the total amount raised by the State for highway construction.

The candidates will not answer these questions if the voters are not interested enough to demand that they answer them. If the voters are too indifferent to want to know, the candidates are not going to run the risk of losing votes by making public statements, either in public meetings or through the press. They are going to play safe and keep quiet and when elected do as they please or according to secret pledges they may have made. And as long as that is allowed Virginia is going to have in the General Assembly men and women who are there for private reasons of their own, men who are named to make laws for others without having any known qualifications for the work, men who hold high office to gratify their own petty ambition for the limelight or to get through some special legislation about which they did not care first to take the people into their confidence.

There are other very important questions for our law makers to consider—further tax reductions and a reformation of election laws so that all white men and women may have a voice in all elections without deceptive hindrances and vicious partizan election officers. Yes there are and issues and the people have a right to know now for what the Legislative candidates stand.

STONEWALL

Miss Frances Stratton is home for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whitten's children have whooping cough. There are several other cases around here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W Neighbors Jr., of Lynchburg, spent Sunday with the former's parents.

Editor Clement and daughter, Miss Ruth, were business visitors in this neighborhood Tuesday and were dinner guests of Mr and Mrs. S. E. Anderson.

Mr. J. H. Elder of Richmond, spent Saturday night in the home of Mr. C. M. Stratton and family. Mrs. Elder and little girl, Mary Cornelia, returned to Richmond with him Sunday. John Howard, Jr. remained for a longer visit.

Mrs. G. A. Jacobs and baby, Betty, have concluded several weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Stratton, going to Richmond Sunday for a visit.

Miss Bertie Powell of Richmond, was a guest in the home of Mr. E. H. Carson and family last week.

Wedding bells will be ringing soon.

Mrs. Bright of Durham, N. C. is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. L. Caudle and family.

Miss Virginia Chick is visiting relatives in Lynchburg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Drinkard and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Drinkard and Clayton, Jr., spent Sunday with Mrs. Jennie Bondurant and family near Six Mile Bridge.

PELICAN IS MENACE TO FISHING IN GULF

Texas May Place Bounty on Picturesque Fowl.

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—Market fishermen on the gulf coast of Texas are facing a pelican problem. They have brought it to the legislature in the hope that a law may be passed that will solve it. The question is a controversial one and revolves around the difference of opinion as to whether the pelicans really deplete the waters of the bays and gulf of marketable fish to any serious extent.

The National Association of Audubon Societies has taken a hand in the dispute and is opposing any legislation that seeks to bring about the extermination of the pelican, asserting that it is a harmless salt-water fowl.

This organization cites the results of an investigation made by the federal food administration in 1919, which reported that there were in that year only 5,000 pelicans on the coast of Texas.

The market fishermen ridicule this statement. They assert that 100,000 pelicans would be a low estimate of the number that constantly feed upon fish in the waters of the gulf border-ing Texas, and that nearly 5,000 of the fowls can be counted any time on Pelican Island in Pass Cavallo, to be numbered of the thousands of others that make their home upon other islands and the mainland.

Average for Each Pelican.

An experiment conducted by Col. William G. Sterret, when he was state game commissioner, showed that each pelican catches an average of 1,050 pounds of marketable fish a year. If there are 100,000 pelicans, they consume a total of 100,000,000 pounds of fish annually, if Sterrett's estimate was correct, it is pointed out. That means approximately 25 pounds of fish per capita of the people of Texas.

When the bill of Representative H. W. Wells of Edna, providing for the payment of a bounty on pelicans and pelican eggs, came before the house, it provoked earnest and at times humorous discussion.

The measure was passed by the house and, it is expected, it will meet with little opposition in the senate. It provides that the state shall pay 25 cents for each pelican killed and 5 cents for each pelican egg destroyed. Each bounty claim shall be accompanied by a piece of the upper part of the pelican's bill, not less than four inches long, as proof that the fowl was killed. No proof of the destruction of the eggs is provided for.

$2 for Each Porpoise Killed.

The same bill contains a provision for the payment of a bounty of $2 for each porpoise killed and that the proof shall be four inches of the tail of such porpoise. It is claimed that porpoises are also great enemies of the market fishing industry, as they eat many fish.

Men who have made a study of the habits of the pelican declare that they gorge themselves and their young with fish, that the pouch which they load with fish is of enormous size, and that the fowls are as much of a pest to the fishing industry as the boll weevil is to the cotton industry.

The views of these men, however, are contrary to the findings of Dr. Hugh M. Smith, chief of the United States fish commission, who said that on a trip which he made to the gulf coast for the purpose of investigating the reported depredations of pelicans he collected pelicans all along the coast and the only fish he found in their pouches was the menhaden, a fish which is not used for human consumption. In Florida, in 1918, he examined 3,428 specimens of the fish which were disgorged by pelicans and only 27 individual fish were of a kind ever sold in the markets for food.

German Society Urges "Bath a Week" for All

Berlin.—Reviving the slogan, "A bath a week for every German," devised by Prof. Oscar Lassar in the days when Berlin had more beautiful fountains than bathtubs, the Society for Free Public Baths has begun a campaign for more swimming pools and bathing benches.

Even today, the society reports, there are millions of persons in Germany without modern home facilities for keeping clean. The well-rounded program started a quarter of a century ago by various states and cities to fill the need by establishing public bath houses was halted by the war and inflation period, and never has been fully revived.

The society is now attempting to foster the body-cleanliness movement. Six additional bath establishments are finished or under construction in Berlin alone.

6,292,653 Autos Cross Bridge in 10 Months

Camden, N. J.—Statistics made public recently on the volume of automobile traffic handled by the Delaware river bridge linking Camden and Philadelphia indicate that the popularity of this route may liquidate the debt of this structure from three to eight years ahead of the estimated period.

The figures made public by the Delaware River Bridge commission show that 6,292,653 automobiles used this route during the first ten months.

It had been estimated that the traffic for the year would not exceed 6,000,000 machines.

LDS HELD CHIEF LOST-TIME CAUSE

Ailment Blamed for -39 Per Cent of Absences.

Washington, D. C.—The common cold goes to the head of the list as a cause of lost time. In a survey of absences from work in a big industrial firm over a period of ten years, just completed by statisticians at the United States public health service, it was found that colds caused a time loss equivalent to 1.4 days per year for every man on the pay roll and 2.1 days per ahnum for every female employe. Colds were directly responsible for 39 per cent of all the absences among the men and for 81 per cent among the women.

Diseases of the general type known as respiratory caused approximately half of all the absences, but were not so common among the women as the men. Women, it would appear from these records, are more liable to disablement from nervous disorders and diseases of the throat and tonsils, but their disabling illnesses are shorter on the whole than the men's. This condition in favor of the so-called weaker sex is counterbalanced, however, by the fact that their absences were more numerous, totaling fourteen calendar days apiece during the whole ten years, while that of the men reached only 8.9.

A high proportion of illnesses occurred among the younger employes, notably among the women. The statisticians suggest that this circumstance may be in part accounted for by the dropping out of the less healthy. The group representing the ages thirty to thirty-five, they state, seems as a whole to have a greater resistance to colds, tonsilitis and stomach disorders than the younger ages.

Civilization Fails to Dim Indian's Vision

Muskogee, Okla. — Undimmed by civilization, the keen eyesight of the Indians, essential in early days to detect the presence of enemies or of wild game for food, still is retained for the peaceful pursuits of the present generation.

Dr. Charles Southard, secretary of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, after testing the eyes of school children in thirteen states, said that the 400 Indian students at Bacone college here possess, collectively, the best eyesight of any group he had examined.

"The Indians read distant charts with ease," he said. "while their white cousins are unable to make out the largest characters."

Doctor Southard cautioned the Indians, however, that unless they stopped reading while lying in bed this marvelous faculty would be endangered.

Want Grant Log Cabin Back at Point Pleasant

Columbus, Ohio.—The little log cabin in which Gen. U. S. Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Ohio, would be returned to its original location, after more than 40 years of wandering about the country, under a bill passed by the Ohio house of representatives. For many years the cabin has been one of the attractions at the Ohio fair, having been purchased by the state after being moved about the country on private exhibition for several years. It was moved from Point Pleasant in 1885 to St. Louis, where it was displayed, and later taken to the world's fair in Chicago in 1893. The Ohio senate is expected to approve the house measure.

Bears Are Well Versed in Game Laws in East

Philadelphia.—The black bear of Pennsylvania is among the cleverest of animals in eluding hunters.

In summer, when protected by game laws, Bruin rambles carelessly about the state, looking things over and picking up delicacies here and there in orchards, berry patches and dairies. Now and then he pauses to watch farm hands at work.

When fall comes and Bruin is legally "in season" he is actually "out," seeking refuge in remote ravines, away from the sound of hunters' shots. It was only with the greatest perseverance that Pennsylvania hunters bagged 514 bears last season.

Claims China Invents "Noiseless" Cannon

Shanghai.—Chinese, credited with invention of gunpowder, have now produced "noiseless cannon," say newspapers reporting tests of a gun designed by Yang Yi-cheng.

The silencer is not an attachment but part of the original mechanism and the principles are kept secret. Although the gun is effective at a distance of 2.3 miles, it is claimed, the explosion cannot be heard more than 400 feet away.

"Makes shoot — no makee bang," is how the achievement is was captioned by a foreign-language newspaper, which said Chang Tso-lin, northern generalissimo, had purchased the invention for the Peking government, giving the inventor a bonus of $10,000.

SAYS DESTRUCTION BRINGS SUN'S HEAT

Changes in Matter Cause Energy, Scientist Says.

Mt. Hamilton, Calif.—Matter in the sun and stars is constantly being destroyed and turned into the light and heat and other forms of energy which these bodies send to us. This is the conclusion of Dr. Donald H. Menzel of the Lick observatory here in a paper on "The Source of Solar Energy," which has just been awarded the A. Cressy Morrison prize of the New York Academy of Sciences.

The earth is about one billion years old, he assumes, and so the sun has sent out in this period for each ounce of its material enough heat to raise 750 tons of water from the temperature of melting ice to that of boiling water.

This is far more, says Doctor Menzel, than can be accounted for by any burning process, by original heat of the sun, by meteors raining upon it, or even by the disintegration of radium.

Only by supposing that matter itself in the stars is actually changing to energy, according to the theory of J. H. Jeans, a famous English astronomer, can all of the heat that the sun and stars have been giving off for ages past be accounted for, thinks Doctor Menzel. This fits in with the modern ideas of the structure of the atoms out of which all matter is made.

The atom is supposed to be made up of charges of negative and positive electricity, and when one of each comes together they annihilate each other and give off a flash of energy. This would be similar, in the length of the waves, he thinks, to the penetrating rays bombarding the earth from space, which were exhaustively studied recently by Dr. R. A. Millikan of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics in Pasadena.

This theory will explain all the known facts about the stars, believes Doctor Menzel, and will account for their having existed as long as 10,000,000,000 years. However, he does not claim perfection for it.

Mother Chooses Job So Children May Play

South Hadley, Mass.—Although the playgrounds of most children are determined by the residence and occupations of their parents, Mrs. Sydney Greenbie, author of travel books and assistant professor of English at Mount Holyoke college, confesses that the reverse is true in her case and that she chose her job because her children liked to play on the campus.

"When a woman follows a literary career alone, she is free to drift about the world unencumbered," says Mrs. Greenbie, who as Marjorie Latta Barstow traveled extensively, and subsequently wrote "In the Eyes of the East."

But as the mother of a family her children must be considered before her books. "My work gives me freedom to be with my youngsters, and they have virtually become the college mascots."

In search of traditions of old sea captains for "Gold of Ophir," which they wrote in collaboration, Mrs. Greenbie and her husband traveled the Atlantic coast in an old motor car with the babies packed in securely beside them.

British Cling to Old Parliament Fireplaces

London.—Proposals to replace all fireplaces in the houses of parliament with steam heat radiators have gotten a very chilly reception.

There are 500 fireplaces in the famous Westminster buildings, mostly in members' and committee rooms. All winter a force of fire lighters is kept busy tending them.

Statesmen maintain that there is nothing like an open fire as an aid to inspiration and that their constituents from the country would never feel at home seated in a steam-heated room.

Copy of Sentence Passed on Christ Reported Found

Madrid.—A research worker studying the millions of archives deposited for many centuries in the dungeons in the castle of Simancas, near Valladolid, has discovered a document claimed to be a copy in Italian of the original sentence by Pondius Pilate passed on Christ, a message received from Valladolid recently stated. The document states that the inscription on the cross was in three languages, Hebrew, Greek and Latin.

Numbers Key to Low Cost for Perfumes

Paris.—French women are discovering that if they order perfumes by number instead of name they can get them at a fraction of the price charged by fashionable stores here and in America.

The numbers, however, are carefully guarded secrets, supposed to be known only to manufacturers and their high-priced clients, consequently they are difficult for the average citizen to learn.

Dressmakers and specialty shops explain that much of the expense of costly perfumes is in the fancy bottles.

Judge Cole is attorney for the Gulf Oil Co. of that city and is visiting his Virginia relatives during his vacation.

Sunday, Clifton Marable was arrested in Pamplin by officers there and one-half gallon of whiskey was found. At his hearing Monday before Mayor Rice he was fined $50 and sentenced to jail for 60 days, from which he appealed and was admitted to bail.

Robert Mitchell has secured the contract for the erection of the new school building at Pamplin. The cost of same will probably reach $10,000. All of Pamplin and that splendid section of the county is to be congratulated on this achievement. People's tax money spent on schools and roads judiciously will come nearer serving the public than any expenditure.

It is said the High School Department of Stonewall School will be discontinued and students in that grade will be brought to Appomattox. This will work a hardship on many of the high school students, but the good people of Stonewall will stand for most anything. We hate to see a step backward in the schools of any section and we know this rich section of our county can have just the kind of school the people demand and really want.

Birthday Party

On Saturday night June 18th a birthday party was given in compliment to Miss Ola Chambers and Mr. Willie Chambers. Games and music furnished diversions. Supper was served, a beautifully decorated table in a color note of blue and white. Two cakes decked the center of the table lighted with candles. The guests were: Dorothy Burks, Texie Burks, Mabel Babcock, Taylor Gilbert, Luther Krantz, Howard Martin, George Perdue, Jones Caldwell, Allen Mitchell, John D. Mitchell, Curtis Mitchell, Lem Mitchell, Jesse Fletcher, David Christian, Jack Burks, Strode Burks, Berkley Gilbert, Curtis Bingham.

MISS DOSS ENTERTAINS

Miss Alethea Doss entertained a number of friends last Saturday evening in honor of her week-end guests Misses Cornelia Barbieri and Marguerite Thomas of Lynchburg.

After a most enjoyable evening of interesting games and social conversation, refreshments were served. Those present were: Misses Cornelia Barbieri, Marguerite Thomas, Louise Johnson and Dorothy Smith, of Lynchburg, Marion Snead and Eunice Harris of Forest, Virginia Blackburn, of Roanoke, Edith, Naomi and Virginia Thomas. Messrs. Arnold Childers, Bertrand Horsley, George, Malcolm and Harry Mays, of Lynchburg, Tom Doss, of Blackstone, Lloyd Trent, of Forest, Dun Marks, Asa and William Meadows.

Blake—Carwile

The most important social affair of the week was the marriage of Miss Ruth Carwile, the only and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Carwile to Mr. George M. Blake of Norton, Va. The wedding took place at the home of the bride on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, before an improvised alter banked with ferns, ivy, and daises. The bride was given away by her father. Rev. A. J. Ponton performed the ceremony. She wore a blue going away gown of crepe with accessories to match. Miss Grace Carwile, sister of the bride wore pink organdy with large picture hat, wearing large corsage of rosebuds and peas. The bride carried buds, roses and lillies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Blake left after the ceremony on an extended northern tour where they will visit Philadelphia, New York, Niagara Falls, and Canada. The bride is a graduate of Farmville Teachers College and has taught successfully in Va. and N C. The groom is a prominent business man of Norton, where they will make their home. We extend to them our best wishes.

Baptist Ministers Entertained

Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Caudle delightfully entertained the Baptist Ministers of Lynchburg and vicinity at the pastorium near Hebron Monday, June 27th. The following ministers were present: Revs. A. I Caudle, R. A. McFarland, T. Claggett Skinner, T. S. Guy, W. S. Royall, J. H. Broyles, M. A. McLean, B. L. Peters, E. E. Lamb, W. M. Thompson, W. B. Miller, W. B. Ingram, S. H. Perkins J. H. Franklin, J. C. Venable, W. F. Fisher and R. M. Nelson.

The morning was spent at croquet, pitching horse shoes and hiking about the wooded premises after which a most bountiful dinner was served. Besides abundant fried chicken and vegetables of every variety a delicious Smithfield ham had been imported for the occasion. This was followed by the usual delicacies served in true Hebron style.

The following ladies assisted Mrs. Caudle with the serving, Mrs. R. W. Bright, Mrs. Caudle's mother, Mrs. Sam Hunter, Mrs. B. L. Peters, Miss Bertha Daniels, Mrs. Frank Jennings, Mrs. C. E. Carson, Mrs. Anna Lee Mrs. J. P. Alvis, Mrs. C. F. Drinkard and Miss Lina Carson.

Rev. M. A. McLean with choice and humorous words expressed the appreciation of the guests.

C. F. Harvey

It is with profound sorrow that we record the death of our friend and brother C. F. Harvey, who has been a resident of Pamplin for more than forty years. He was paralyzed on Friday afternoon and passed away at the Memorial Hospital in Lynchburg Sunday.

Mr. Harvey was a faithful member of the Methodist Church and was a Mason, Odd Fellow, and Elk. All of these organizations will miss his loyalty. His home going leaves a vacancy in his town which never can be filled, but we feel that God doeth all things well.

Mrs. J. R. Caldwell

This highly esteemed lady passed away at her home near here early Wednesday morning in the 74th year of her age. She had been in declining health for along time and two weeks ago her children were summoned for the expected end. Deceased was a member of the Presbyterian Church and led a blameless life. She was a member of one of the prominent Virginia families and had a wide circle of relatives and friends. About four years ago her husband died and she has since been the helpable home where her nine children and the grand children loved to gather.

Deceased is survived by two sisters and two brothers—Mrs. T. H. A. Cheatham, of Roanoke, Mrs. Thomas W. Evans, of Masers. J. A. and W. F. Wood, of Campbell. The following children also survive her—Mrs. Rachel O'Brien, W. B., R E. Jr., and Chas. R and Misses Ann and Florence Caldwell, of Appomattox, Mrs. E. H. Hammersley, of Richmond, Mrs. W. P. Cook, of Norfolk, and Mrs. Lucile Bush, of Hampton.

The funeral services were conducted from her late home and the interment was made in the family burying ground at 5 o'clock this evening where a very large crowd of friends assembled. The beautiful flowers covered her grave and that of her deceased husband. RevRedding conducted the service assisted by Revs. Trent, Thompson and McNair.

Active pall-bearers were: A. R. Harwood, C. T. Moses, C. S. McDearmon, D. N. Twyman, B. G. Anderson, A. H. Clement, Dr. D. A. Christian, J. E. Dinwiddie.

Hubbard, of Hixburg, and Mrs. Florence Price, of Pamplin.

Last Chance

Saturday, July 2, is the last date on which government war time insurance can be reinstated and converted.

Despite the fact that wide publicity has been given through the press and various service organizations there are still thousands of ex-service men who are not taking advantage of the insurance offer. No war veteran should neglect this protection offered by his country in consideration of his services. Write Veterans Bureau Richmond, or Washington for application blank.
